> "Even Maryland," continues the Enquirer, "what may the Whig and Fillmore Senators from Maryland —Messrs. Pearce and Pratt, upon this subject? They represent Maryland in the Senate of the United States, and were ever the most confided in, and most trusted by the Whigs of that State? What says the Hon. Reverdy Johnson, another gallant son of Maryland, once a Whig Senator, and Gen. Taylor's Attorney General? What say these men of Maryland, who have ever been the heart and soul of the Whig party of Maryland—of the very people who are now expecting to vote for Fillmore? Why, they tell us with one voice the Fillmore? with one voice, that Fillmore has not the shade of a shadow of a chance in Maryland; and therefore Senators Pearce and Pratt announce their determination not to throw away their votes on their favorite can-didate, Mr. Fillmore, but to cast them openly for James Buchanan."

Will our Northern friends permit us to state, truthully, that these "distinguished gentlemen" are "not the heart and soul of the Whig party of Maryland;' that the Whigs who follow their lead may be countcated in Shelbyville, begs leave to announce that he will devote his attention to the practice of his profession in all its various branches. By diligent ion with respect to the prospects of Mr. Fillmore, in this State, is laughed at by those who know the real strength of the Fillmore party in Maryland. We are not disposed to indulge in braggadocia of any kind, nor will we knowingly pervert the truth, even if by so doing we could secure the elevation to the Presidency of that excellent and pure minded man whom the Whigs have selected as their candidate; but we do assert, confidently, that Millard Fillmore will receive a large majority of the votes of the people of Maryland at the November election, no matter what his chances of auccess may be in any of the other States of the Union. FINE FARM FOR SALE. WE desire to sell the FARM we recently pur-chased of Capt. S. H. Myles, situate in Shelby county, Ky., on the road to Belleview, five miles north from Shelbyville and six from Belleview. It is considered not only one of the best, but the best is considered not only one of the best, but the best Farm of the size in the county. It contains 313 acres, about 200 cleared and in the finest state of cultivation; and the balance well set in blue grass. There is not on the farm five acres that are not first rate hemp land. Clear Creek runs in at one corner, cutting off about 30 acres, and meanders along the farm so as to furnish never failing stock water in abundance, without a necessity for any extra fencing.

The improvements are all good: consisting of a very comfortable Dwelling in complete order; all necessary out buildings, in first rate repair; large new Barn; Stabling, and Corn Brib; a large Hemp House, recently erected; an excellent fee House,—now full of ice,—in which ice has frequently been kept the year through. A fine well of excellent never failing water near the house door.

I pressed my native strand, I've wandered many miles at sea, And many miles on land.
I've seen fair realms of the earth
By rude commotion torn,
Which taught me how to prize the worth Of that where I was born.

In other countries, when I heard The language of my own,
How fondly each familiar word
Awoke an answering tone!
But when our woodland songs were sung

Upon a foreign mart,
The vows that faltered on the tongue
With rapture thrilled the heart! My native land, I turn to you, With blessing and with prayer, Where man is brave and woman true,

And free as mountain air.

WOMAN'S PRIDE .- BY POCAHONTAS. "Well! I think Mary has injured her dignity considerably, by marrying George when his parents objected." So spoke one of a party of three young girls, who sat, one pleasant evening, under a great oak tree, on a beautiful hill side.

"Suppose she loved him, Ida," said Eva "Loved him!" said Ida, "Loved him! and do you suppose I would let that interfere for one moment with the sustaining of my pride! Loved him; if I did, and it would sever me inch by inch, I would never marry a man if one of his most distant relations objected."

"Ah, Ada! not even Henry Woodford?" "When I spoke I made no exceptions," said Ida with a haughty frown.

Ida's sister, Lou, raised her mild blue eyes to Ida's face, and began, "Ida," but she was interrupted by Eva Stanton's ex-"There, Ida, comes the identical gentleman himself; shall I ask him if mother and father is willing?" Ida tried to frown and look scornful, as she replied-"No, Eva, you need not ask their minds on that subject.' "It would deprive you of the pleasure of doing so," laughed Eva. The near approach of the young gentleman prevented Ida's haughty reply. When he saw them he dismounted from his gig, securing his horse to a tree, ascended the hill, and greeted them gaily and courteously; but the words he had for Ida, although as common-placed as the ones for her friends, yet they were accompanied by a as strangers." loving, tender glance that would not have tainly did not Eva's if we may judge by the way it sparkled, and its mischievous glan-, fell lifeless upon the floor.

When they had conversed about half an hour, the proposal was made to return to the village, which was a half mile distant. "Which of you, ladies," said Henry, will accept of the vacant seat in my gig? Miss Lon, as you are the eldest, and not in good health, perhaps you will ride?"

"No, I am going to stop and see my brother Goodman, as I go home, and therefore I must walk; but I doubt not you can persuade one of these ladies to accompany "Which lady will do me the honor?"

"Then, Miss Ida, you must consent to cheer the rest of my lonely journey, for I have come thirty miles alone to-day.'

"No," said Ida, "I will-" "Now don't say walk," interrupted Henry, "will not one of you ride?" "You, Ida, you must go with Mr. Wood ford," said Eva; "such gallantry should not go unrequited. You cannot decide. Here s a dime, I will throw it, and if the eagle falls up, you ride. Do you agree?" "Yes," laughed Ida. Up went the dime, and the eagle fell upwards. "There," cried Eva, "fate decrees-you must submit."

As Henry assisted Ida into the gig, all appeared to submit to the decrees of fate very cheerfully. "Dear Ida," said Henry, when the gig was in motion, "I suppose I am indebted to the dime for this pleasure." "No, Henry, I wanted to ride with you,

"But you dreaded Eva Stanton's laughing eye," suggested Henry. "I expect that was it; but, dear Henry, I will never be so foolish again."

There was a short, embarrassed silence, as though each dreaded to mention the subject uppermost in their minds.

"As you know, Ida, I am just from home, and told my parents of our engagement. Mother will be down in a few weeks to see me or us." Ida smiled. "I shall be happy to see her." "Suppose, dear one, mother should think adding :

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT. THE GRAND EXTERNAL REMEDY.
By the aid of a microscope, we see millions of little openings on the surface of our bodies. Through these this Ointment, when rubbed on the skin, is carried to any organ or inward part. Diseases of the Kidneys, disorders of the Liver, affections of the Heart, inflammation of the Lungs, Asthmas, Coughs and Colds, are by its means effectually cured. Evry housewife knows that sait passes freely through bone or meat of any thickness. This healing Ointment far more readily penetrates through any bone of fleshy part of the living body, curing the most dangerous inward complaints, that cannot be reached
